

Introductory English Courses at Acadia

Whether you are an English major, an aspiring English Honours student, or a student in another program seeking an engaging elective, we have an introductory English course for you.

ENGLISH MAJORS & HONOURS STUDENTS

ENGL 1406 Writing and Reading Critically has been designed with you in mind. Every section of this full-year course is limited to just 32 students and is taught by a qualified professor. You will explore a variety of novels, plays, poems, and essays while also working to hone your analytic skills and to develop a clear and persuasive writing style. Complete this course with a C- or better and you will be eligible to proceed in the English program, selecting from upper-level courses covering a range of periods, authors, genres, and critical approaches, including various creative writing courses. You may choose to complete this prerequisite for upper-level English study as two single-term courses, ENGL 1413 & 1423, though this is not recommended.

NOTE: ENGL 1406 (or 1413 and 1423) meet the Arts Core requirement for 6h of English at the 1000 level.

NON-MAJORS

If it's an introduction to English at the university level you're looking for, then either the full-year or two single-term versions of Writing and Reading Critically, ENGL 1406 or ENGL 1413 and 1423, are excellent choices for you. You'll read a selection of novels, plays, poems, and essays and also work in a small class setting with a qualified professor to develop your writing and critical thinking skills. Complete this course with a C- or better and you will be eligible to take any of a large selection of 2000 and 3000-level English literature and creative writing courses as you progress through the degree program of your choice.

NOTE: ENGL 1406 (or 1413 and 1423) meet the Arts Core requirement for 6h of English at the 1000 level.

We also offer a limited number of sections of ENGL 1213/1223 Composition. In the single-term ENGL 1213 you'll be asked to read a variety of essays and articles to help you learn to write a unified and coherent academic essay. ENGL 1223 builds on the basic elements of writing covered in ENGL 1213, but the emphasis is on argumentation.

NOTE: ENGL 1213 and 1223 DO MEET the Arts Core requirement for 6h of English at the 1000 level. However, successful completion of ENGL 1213/1223 WILL NOT allow you to enrol in upper-level English literature or creative writing courses.

NON-NATIVE ENGLISH SPEAKERS

If English is not your native language, then ENGL 1313/1323 Composition for Second Language Students may be just what you need. These single-term courses with an enrolment limit of just 18 students focus primarily on the development of writing skills for those who do not speak English as a first language. Special attention is given to fundamentals of grammar, vocabulary building, sentence structure, analysis of texts, and the organization of written argument.

NOTE: ENGL 1313/1323 DO NOT count toward the Arts Core requirement of 6h of English. Also, successful completion of ENGL 1313/1323 and/or ENGL 2313 WILL NOT allow you to enrol in upper-level English literature or creative writing courses. However, students whose first language is not English ARE PERMITTED to count these courses toward the Arts Core second language requirement.
